Teach me Your ways, O Lord . . .

This gospel is a call to holiness by being a servant as Jesus was. God offers salvation in accepting the cup of suffering which is part of the daily struggle of living and coping with the joys and sorrows of family life. Parenting poses a greater challenge in this day than ever before. Through living in the humdrum routine of family life of loving each other, rearing the children, nursing the sick, going to work, correcting homework and seeking nothing in return, parents discover their call to holiness. It is all about giving yourself unconditionally in humble service so that children will gain a sense of who they are how much they matter. The ideal of service should be part of our everyday living and the place to start is in our own homes.

PRAYER REQUEST LINE
905 881-2786 ext. 250

WE PRAY FOR EACH OTHER

In my 20 years being a catholic, I was baptized a year or two after birth, I have never been very good at praying for others. Many times I have assured others that I will pray for them with the good intention of doing so but when I sit down to actually do it, if I even remember, my prayer is rather short and sweet. “Jesus, please keep Dave close to your heart at this difficult time” or “Lord, please help Jane to remember you are close to her as she is struggling now.” The same is true with my Godchildren as I often feel guilty about my lack of meaningful prayer for them. Of course there is nothing wrong with short prayer as Jesus gets the message but my prayers seemed to be lacking something, like fireworks that blast off brightly into the sky but soon fizzle out.

My perspective on praying for others changed one afternoon while I was watching the Daily Mass on YouTube. At the end of the Mass the priest asked us to pray for him and assured us that he would pray for us. For some reason at this point the whole idea of praying for each other suddenly clicked and resonated with me.

Prior to this moment when somebody asked me to pray for them I perceived it as a sign of their humility, acknowledging their sinfulness and need for prayers. The same if someone was undergoing a hardship in their life they would ask for my prayers to help them through it which I gladly offered on both accounts, but I think the reason why my prayers felt shallow is because I failed to realize that prayer is never one directional. For prayer like our relationships is communal and moves in both directions. We are the Body of Christ so when a member of the Body is suffering we suffer too and thus the need for all members of the Body to pray for each other so that the entire Body may heal. Prayer like the life giving blood that moves throughout our arteries gives life to the Body and brings a renewed wholeness.

Just as it is with Jesus, we pray to Jesus telling him how much we love him and then we listen as Jesus tell us how much he loves us, our prayer is communal and reciprocal and interconnects us all.

Recently, the leaders of the Liturgy of the Word for Children have started a practice of praying for each other throughout the week leading up the Sundays in which we lead. It is amazing how much this practice has already helped us to feel more interconnected and in spiritual union with one another. So as I close this column I humbly ask if you would pray for me and I will be sure to pray for you.

John Humphries.
