Teach me Your ways, O Lord...

It is true that we have all experienced our fair share of hurts in life and have wasted endless energy trying to settle old scores. One of the most difficult lessons to learn is forgiveness of those who have wronged us. The reluctance to forgive and the rush to judgement is the kind of thing that Jesus is trying to eliminate from our lives, and he sets the example for us through his own life as he extended the hand of love, kindness, and forgiveness until his death on the cross when he prayed, “Father, forgive them”.

He never sought revenge or retaliation against those who wanted to hurt him and in the end, it cost him his life. Forgiveness is a life-giving force that checks the downward spiral of hatred and revenge. The whole story of salvation is one of loving forgiveness.

Every time we recite The Lord’s Prayer, our request for forgiveness is conditional on ourselves showing forgiveness to those who have offended us. Not to forgive is to harbor resentment and to allow enemies to have control over us.

“Love Your Enemies!” What Does It Mean? Can It Be Done?

While breaking open the Word and reflecting on the Gospel reading during our RCIA (Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults) session this week, the reaction of our group was one of disbelief. “Really, we must do this?” was the question on the group’s mind.

In Luke’s Gospel Jesus said, “Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you.” (Luke 6:27-28) There it is, very clearly stated. To love your enemies is a powerful statement and not one that goes down easily. For me, it is one of the most challenging verses in the Bible. I ask myself, “What does loving my enemy mean? A better question may be, “What does my enemy look like?”

There are many types of enemies. Here I am referring to someone who may have hurt us in very serious, deep ways. Where our relationships have been tarnished by a negative experience. Have you ever gotten in a fight or misunderstanding with a friend? Have you been hurt by something a family member has done or said to you? Often there is a justifiable reason for hating and not liking someone. However, on the other side of those feelings and situations, there is another person who has become our enemy. This person offends us, does us harm, and makes life miserable for us. Still, they are the person God commands us to love, bless, do good to, and pray for. Jesus is saying that if we choose not to hate and to love and pray for those who wrong us, then there is the potential for change. Change for the person who chooses to forgive and love and change for the offender who may change by being shown mercy and forgiveness. A healing process can start. Jesus is not saying that we should put up with mistreatment or allow ourselves to be abused but rather by not behaving the same way as our offender and by responding with love. Love does not take revenge. Love does not hurt the other who has caused us harm. Love always treats others, even enemies, with a humble heart. Love calls us to go above and beyond, even more than expected.

It is easy to love someone who loves us, but Jesus says where is the gain in this? God shows his goodness and love to everyone even those who do not deserve it. Jesus knew what it meant to be hated but through loving those who wronged him, he used it to change lives. Jesus wants us to understand that true love comes from a deep trust in God. Jesus’ dying on the cross is the perfect example of this love. Jesus did not take revenge or get even, but gave His life as a payment for our sins.

“As I walked out the door toward the gate that would lead to my freedom, I knew if I didn’t leave my bitterness and hatred behind, I’d still be in prison.” – Nelson Mandela
